

Imagine being your teen
for a day

Location: Bethel Church

Parent Summit
Speaker: Brian Housman
International speaker and author

Imagine:

feeling like you finally have a handle on your teen's culture, know how to talk with them about it, and are taking steps to be a spiritual influence in their lives. It can be a reality. Here is the help you've been looking for.

Experience:

eye-opening workshops that quickly move you from information to principle to action. Throughout the sessions you get an honest bird's-eye view of your teen's world and the cultural land mines they encounter every day.

Connect:

with parents who are on the same journey as you. You'll spend the day in transparent conversation understanding who your teen is and how to love them for who God has made them to be.

About Our Speaker

Brian Housman, International speaker and author.

Brian has spent the past twenty-one years in a variety of ministry positions—Youth pastor, spiritual life director, camp director. Currently he serves as the director of 360 Family, a non-profit organization he founded for parents and teens. Through speaking to various groups in both churches and schools, Brian has seen today's teen culture from many different perspectives and backgrounds. Brian has been instrumental in creating a number of programs to help bridge the spiritual and relational gap between parents and teens. More than 100 churches have hosted one of these Parent Summit Conferences.

Tech Savvy Parenting

On Saturday September 22nd, Brian Houseman will be here to discuss issues affecting our teens on a daily basis—Internet safety, social media, cyberbullying, etc. You will leave this event with not only a working knowledge of the web culture but also with specific steps you can take as a parent to safeguard you home and

Your child will spend at least 8.5 hours a day connected to screens and media. This generation is redefining how we find community and friends, the kind of personal information we share, and what are acceptable boundaries. As parents we must help our children use technology responsibly and with integrity, and it starts here.
